

THE TRUE DEMOCRAT.

JOHN G. COLLINS, Publisher.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.

They holler for the man who bangs
And mauls the wicked trust.
And when the tariff sharp harangues
They fairly raise the dust.
They wake the echoes in the dell
As off their hats they jerk.
But I ain't heard no person yell
Hurrah for old man Work!

It's fine enough to cheer this man,
And cheer the other, too;
They both have got a lovely plan,
And know just what to do.
But those for them that bawl so well
Are much inclined to shirk.
I'd like to hear some person yell
Hurrah for old man Work!

Heart Fluttering.

"Jacksonville Politician" in it.

It comes from Tallahassee that there was no politics in taking the office of County Solicitor from Perkins, but no honest citizen of Volusia believes any such stuff. A Jacksonville politician, who stands pretty close to the Governor, has been talking about getting Perkins' scalp ever since the present chief Executive was elected; that Perkins had given him too much trouble in State committee meetings and conventions, and that he, the Jax. P., intends to get even with the Volusia Solicitor. Why didn't Governor Broward, if there was no politics in his suspension of Solicitor Perkins, ask the democrats of Volusia to express some wish for a choice for the vacancy? It would have been democratic for him to have done so, and for the democrats and the people generally to have had some voice in the matter as to who shall be their public servants. The dominating faction of the democratic party of Volusia is in opposition to the faction to which the Governor is allied, but it has always sought to have the party and the people to have a voice in the selection of the county officers. Sickened of the Scalpel.

An extraordinary event led Lassone, physician to Louis XVI. of France, to abandon his anatomical studies. While selecting from among some dead bodies a suitable subject for dissection he imagined that one of them showed doubtful signs of death and sought to revive a life which was perhaps not extinguished. His efforts were crowned with success. He cured the man, and as he was poor nourished and supported him, but the idea of having been on the point of committing a crime so affected Lassone that he felt himself unable to pursue his accustomed labors, and from that time forward the study of natural history and chemistry took the place of that of anatomy.

Fest of Kisses.

Halmagen, in Roumania, possesses a public festival which is probably unique in the world. It is a little town of about 1,200 inhabitants, and on the morning of its annual fair day the population from about eighty villages come trooping in in swarms. To them go out all the young women, married or single, of Halmagen, each bearing a small flower garland and vessel of wine, and all attended by their godmothers. This last precaution is taken from motives of deference for Mrs. Grundy. As the visitors approach, the young women offer to each a taste of wine and a kiss.

Truthful.

Excited Fisherman (to country hotel keeper)—There isn't a bit of fishing about here. Every brook has a sign warning people off. What do you mean by luring anglers here with the promise of fine fishing? Hotel Keeper—I didn't say anything about fine fishing. If you read my advertisement carefully you will see that what I said was, 'Fishing unapproachable.'

His Regular Business.

"Isn't it taking your son a long time to get through college? It seems to me this must be his sixth or seventh year." "It is, but going to college has become his regular business. Why, the team wouldn't stand any show without him."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Effective.

"What do you regard as the best protection from burglars?" "Well, I have found that being independently poor is effective."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Changing Fashions.

Father (meditating on time's changes)—Ah, yes, the fashion of this world passeth away! Daughter—Indeed it does, papa. I shall want a new hat next week.

The Life Line.

Amateur Palmist—The life line indicates how long you will live. Skeptical Friend—Yes? Isn't it a wonder the life insurance companies pay no attention to it?

Getting Real Lemon Oil.

A dealer in spices in New York held up a small bottle filled with a pale amber liquid. "Smell it," he said, drawing the cork. The visitor inhaled an odor which seemed to call up visions of orange and citron groves of ancient Greek fame.

"It's the genuine oil of lemons," said the dealer in response to a look of inquiry. "That is all I have left of a pound of the oil, and it took 1,200 lemons to produce it. Rather expensive stuff, almost equal to that of attar of roses. The method of obtaining the oil is tedious. A man has a big, dry, clean sponge before him on a table. He takes strips of the lemon peel, gives them a certain twist which breaks the cells and sends the oil out in a fine spray on the sponge. He has to work quickly to avoid evaporation.

"When the sponge has taken up the sprays of about a hundred lemons it is wet enough to be squeezed out. An ounce or so of clear and fragrant oil then flows from it."

Irving's First Success.

In 1874 Henry Irving achieved an immense success by his performance of "Hamlet" at the London Lyceum theater. His interpretation of the part was so striking and unusual that the play had a run unprecedented at that time, continuing for 200 nights. Of his experience in playing this part Sir Henry gave, some years before his death, an interesting account.

"I can always tell," he said, "when the audience is with me. It was not with me on the first night of 'Hamlet,' which is perhaps curious, considering my subsequent success. On the first night I felt that the audience did not go with me until the first meeting with Ophelia, when they changed toward me entirely. But as night succeeded night my Hamlet grew in their estimation. I could feel it all the time, and now I know that they like it—that they are with me heart and soul."—Harper's.

How an Orang Outang Travels.

It is a most interesting sight to watch an orang outang make its way through the jungle. It walks slowly along the larger branches in a semi-erect attitude, this being apparently caused by the length of its arms and the shortness of its legs. It invariably selects those branches which intermingle with those of a neighboring tree, on approaching which it stretches out its long arm and, grasping the boughs opposite, seems first to shake them as if to test their strength and then deliberately swings itself across to the next branch, which it walks along, as before. It does not jump or spring, as monkeys usually do, and never appears to hurry itself unless some real danger presents. Yet, in spite of its apparently slow movements, it gets along far quicker than a person running through the forest beneath. Popular Magazine.

Trout.

A trout is a trout from the day it is born, but not until it gets into the ocean is a salmon a salmon. While it lives in a river it is a parr. On the western coast August and September are the months for the principal run of salmon. Early fall is the season for eastern trout, followed by the German brown and Loch Leven in the late fall. Winter and early spring are the season for rainbow trout, and along in February comes the eastern brook trout, which is followed by lake trout and mykiss, commonly known as cut-throat trout, from a peculiar red marking on the throat. New York Herald.

The Real.

The great actress brings a dress over from Paris. It costs her $1,000. She has to have four maids to help her get into it. When she comes out on the stage the public at once exclaims in rapture:

"This is indeed realism!" "What is she representing? Why, a Sicilian peasant girl.—Puck.

A Tempting Hint.

"Energy," said the young man who had been calling regularly for about a year, "energy and promptitude are wanted nowadays."

"Yes, indeed," replied the young lady, with meaning. "Just look at young Mr. Wilson. He only met Miss Anderson two months ago, and now they are engaged."

Naturally.

"What sort of people are these who are continually seeking divorce?" asked the reformer, with an agonized groan.

"Married people principally," responded the cheerful idiot, with a coarse guffaw. Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Good Lesson.

Spouter—Did you gain anything on the horses last year? Sporter—Yes; I gained enough experience to teach me not to bet on them this year.

Most of our misfortunes are more supportable than the comments of our friends upon them.—A. Dumas.

Lewis Costa, the efficient pressman in the Democrat office, who left for Tallahassee after the fire, returned last night and resumed work. Mr. Costa is one of the best pressmen in the State, and may be considered a permanent fixture in this office. Live Oak Democrat.

The First Requisite of Beauty.

The first requisite of beauty is a clear complexion. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup clears a sallow, blotched complexion as it stimulates the liver and bowels, and the eyes become bright and clear. You owe it to your friends to take it if your complexion is bad. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is very pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers.

HERBINE

The Popular Liver Medicine Will Keep You Well

A GUARANTEED CURE for all diseases produced by TORPID LIVER and IMPURE BLOOD. Do not fill your system with Arsenic, Calomel and Quinine. They act as rank poisons which vitiate the blood, debilitate the system, and leave a trail of bad symptoms which require years to obliterate. HERBINE is purely vegetable and contains no mineral or narcotic poisons, is absolutely harmless and is the simple remedy of nature. It carries off all poison in the system and leaves no injurious effects.

CURED BY HERBINE AFTER OTHER REMEDIES FAILED

Mr. L. A. Hicks, Irredell, Texas, says: "I was sick in bed for eight months with liver trouble, the doctor seemed to do me no good. I was told to try Herbine, and it cured me in a short time. I cannot recommend this wonderful medicine too highly."
